

Quinn Briggs – You did an excellent job. Loved the presentation, I could tell you had an emotional connection to it.

- Servant Leadership is a thing. Was central to my PhD in Leadership Studies.
- Assigning Prayer – This is always a difficult item to approach. Should you assign prayer? Is there a way to opt out?
- Great Presence – you did a great job of facilitation.
- Your presentation was very organized. And you were able to jump right in.
- I am curious about Blooket. Is this just like Kahoots? Can you do Blooket in teams? This is a very powerful approach, where the students get an answer, then talk in their groups, then give a group answer.
- Students that show up late. How do you make them feel welcome?
- Does everyone have to play the Blooket? Do I have to have a smart phone? Do all of our students have a smart phone?
- Are the students incentivized in the quiz? Grade? Candy?
- Consider adding Servant Leadership to your presentation. Lots of well documented, well research opportunities.
- Loved having you add in the scriptures to the relevant aspects of your presentation.
- Love in Action – the heart of a servant
- Scaling Leadership – the equation is not how many, it is how good.
- Loved that you had them share stories. It is also important to get to know how to use silence. The example is when you are in a fast and testimony meeting and there is a break in the testimonies. This is not necessarily bad and everyone is trying to listen to the spirit to hear if they are to bear their testimonies, and what they would say.
